

May 2020

Dear Friends,

How are you doing?

That is the big question during this pandemic. Some are weathering it quite well. Others are really struggling. Now that the quarantine has been extended through May, the struggle is being heightened to levels we've never experienced before.

If you are not doing well in any way (financially, mentally, spiritually, physically) please let me know. There are resources that can be tapped to make sure that you are taken care of. I'm always available to talk, pray, read Scripture, listen...whatever it is you're struggling with. The Lord is always working in and among us and His Word endures forever. I'll communicate by phone, text, email, Zoom...any way your comfortable. But because of my own underlying health conditions I'm limiting personal visits to emergencies only.

Some of you have found creative ways to help other people during this time. Thank you for doing those things! Your God-given talents spread good cheer to those who are hurting. Some of you are in the medical field and helping people stricken with the virus. Thank you to you as well! Your efforts will be remembered for time to come. Some of you are essential workers. Thank you for what you do! You help keep food on our tables and materials we need for our homes. You are particularly vulnerable to the virus and are doing a wonderful job.

Some of us are sheltering in place because of age, immunity challenges, or underlying medical issues. Thank you to you as well! You might feel like you aren't contributing anything, but you are! By keeping yourself away from places where people gather, you are helping in stopping the spread of this virus.

We are all doing our part with what the Lord has provided. All glory, honor, thanks, and praise to Him for His provisions and for the gift of His Son, Jesus Christ, crucified and risen! Take care of yourself and God's blessings to all of you!

Pastor Hoag

Update from Council President, Jeff McDonald

Looking ahead to another month of lock down, I am a bit surprised to find that the feeling front and center in my mind is one of being thankful. While this virus has forced all of us to amend our routines in any number of ways, we have been able to continue hosting 'virtual services' on a host of different sites in hopes of giving our members a consistent message week after week. Special thanks to Pastor Hoag, Lori Hilger and Dan Bay for all their efforts at getting these services out to all of us. In a time of unprecedented uncertainty, it is a great source of comfort to be able to 'see' Trinity regularly and these three are making that possible for us.

In other unprecedented news, we held our first virtual council meeting in April, where we all dialed in and met from the comfort of our respective homes. Like everything else, this will be better once we are back in front of one another. But this worked quite well, and it gave us an opportunity to review the church's business as we do every month - just through a different means. Here again, I'm thankful that we were able to do this as opposed to just canceling the meeting.

Another source of considerable thanks is that our giving is doing surprisingly well despite our inability to congregate in person at Trinity. As luck would have it, we had just launched an online giving option in January of this year, never realizing that we might need it the way we have since the shutdown began. Our members have supported their church through many financial needs, and I was very pleased to see that giving (whether through the mail, drop-offs, or through the online platform) has been very generous despite the hardships that many of you are facing. Thank you to all who continue to support Trinity at this time. We all can be hopeful about this light at the end of the tunnel when things get back to normal, as the initial financial support we are getting suggests we will endure this shutdown period without any significant setback.

Now you know I wouldn't let the fact that our kitchen is done go unspoken as I am pouring out all of these things for which I am thankful. We have one last inspection to pass, and I am hoping that we might pass that by the time this newsletter goes out or shortly thereafter. But the main work on our year-long kitchen remodeling project has been completed and we are down to just a few finishing touches at this point. If you haven't seen the video showing our progress, including some before and after pictures, please check it out at <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=vs-jBsOlq50>. While there were many people involved in making this project happen, I want to single out Jeff Lorenz, Dan Bay and Tom Buell for their tireless efforts and long hours spent getting this project completed for us. We continue to plan to have some sort of breakfast cooked in this kitchen once we are allowed to assemble in a large group, and we'll publish the details of that as soon as they are known.

I am hopeful that we will all soon be able to return to more normal lives than the ones we've been living for the last month and a half. Until then, I hope you are able to attend our virtual services and that things for you are as normal as they can be under these circumstances.
